Breach - Good Causes to Evict

Landlord can bring an action to evict Tenant for material breaches of this Lease, but may not issue a notice to vacate, a notice of non-renewal, or notice to terminate the lease, unless for good cause. Good cause includes significant violations of this lease, like causing property damage, creating a nuisance, or refusing entry when it is permitted. For more detail and a list of examples, see Philadelphia Code §9-804(12).

Landlord Entry Into The Residence

Landlord may only enter the residence with Tenant's permission, or in emergencies, or with 24-hours written notice. Tenant may not unreasonably withhold consent from Landlord to enter the residence during business hours.

End of Lease

After the lease term noted above, the rental shall continue on a month-to-month term until canceled by either party, giving the other party 30 days' written notice. If the lease is month-to-month, the landlord may only cancel the lease for good cause, under Philadelphia Code §9-804(12). When the lease ends, Tenant agrees to return its personal property and keys, and deliver the residence to Landlord in the same condition as it was at the start of the lease; except for normal wear and tear.

Early Termination

Tenant may terminate this lease with 30 days written notice to Landlord. If so, the Tenant will owe the Landlord its actual reasonable re-rental fees, including (1) the cost of acquiring a new tenant and (2) the monthly Rent Amount until the new tenant takes over the lease.

Insurance

Landlord will secure insurance on the building where the leased property is located. Landlord may require Tenant to purchase a basic renter's insurance policy, by checking here:

For residential housing constructed prior to 1978

"Every lessee of any interest in residential property on which a residential dwelling was built prior to 1978 is notified that such property may present exposure to lead from lead-based paint that may place young children at risk of developing lead poisoning. Lead poisoning in young children may produce permanent neurological damage, including learning disabilities, reduced intelligence quotient, behavior problems and impaired memory. Lead poisoning also poses a particular risk to pregnant women. The lessor of any interest in residential real property is required to disclose to the lessee the presence or absence of any lead-based paint and/or lead-based paint hazards. In residential housing constructed prior to 1978, a comprehensive lead inspection or risk assessment for possible lead-based paint and/or lead-based paint hazards is recommended prior to lease."

For all residential housing

(including housing constructed prior to 1978)

"Every lessee of any interest in residential property is notified that any residential dwelling, regardless of construction date, may have a lead water service line or lead plumbing components. Regardless of the construction date, the Lessor of any interest in residential real property is required to disclose to the lessee the known existence of a lead water service line. You are advised to read the pamphlet containing information on lead water service lines and lead plumbing components provided at the time of entering into the lease."
